

JANESVILLE HAS A CHAMPION DRIVER

Miss Marie Schmidley Handles the Ribbons Like a Veteran.

If ex-Artilleryman E. J. Schmidley's challenge is accepted there promises to be some interesting racing within the next few days that will surpass anything that has been held during the winter, although some exciting races have taken place. Mr. Schmidley is willing to match his horse, Dexter L., to be driven by his daughter, Miss Marie Schmidley, against any horse in the city at a matinee to be held either Saturday or Sunday afternoon.

Judging by past performances, Dexter L., especially if driven by Miss Schmidley, is capable of showing his heels to almost anything in the line of horseflesh that Janesville affords. Yesterday afternoon he took three out of five heats from J. L. Fisher's speedy little black mare and on numerous other occasions has shown much class. If the challenge is accepted Mr. Schmidley will not be afraid to "put in" either on the start or the stretch.

Dexter L., who is shown in the accompanying picture together with Miss Schmidley and the prize whip which she won last Sunday, is a big racer, coming six years old, a half brother of Charlie Howe, 2:14, and sired by Geo. W. Howe. Although he has never been put on the circuit he has been paced during the past two years on the ice where he is at his best. No record has been taken of his best performance, but it is believed that he will do a mile in 2:24.

STRANGE ADVENTURE OF LITTLE FELLOW

Five-year-old Ollie Schultz Found Near St. Paul Depot This Morning.

Ollie Schultz is only about five years old and he got lost this morning. Looking vainly for a familiar face, he wandered about the St. Paul station platform in imminent danger of the 10:30 train and sobbing as if his heart would break. He was picked up by station employees and, perched on a desk in the ticket office with his feet beating a tattoo against the sides, told what he knew of his home and

OBITUARY.

James M. House

The remains of the late James M. House arrived here this morning from Watertown, South Dakota, the remains and the party of relatives and members of the Knights Templar order accompanying them being brought here in a special car in charge of a traveling passenger agent of the North-Western road. Mr. House was a conductor in the employ of the road for about forty years, and at nearly every station along the line of his labor the train was halted and beautiful tributes of beautiful flowers were placed on the train. The services proper were held at Watertown. On arrival here the train was met by the local commandery of the Knights Templars and accompanied to Oak Hill chapel, where after a prayer by A. E. Matheson the remains were placed at rest. The pallbearers from this city were the following members of Janesville Commandery No. 2, Knights Templars: J. W. Scott, S. S. Hutchinson, Jesse Earle, Walter Ham Palmer, A. E. Matheson and C. J. Hendricks.

PERSONAL MENTION.

MRS. E. A. BURDICK DIED YESTERDAY

At Her Home on Magnolia Road After a Brief Illness—Funeral Friday Afternoon.

Mrs. E. A. Burdick passed away shortly after two o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Her death came peacefully after an illness of two weeks' duration.

Eleonora Grubb was married to Edson A. Burdick in this city in June, 1878. They took up their residence in Washington D. C., where Mr. Burdick had been located for several years.

Four years ago they returned to Wisconsin and had since made their home on a farm four miles west of Janesville on the Magnolia road.

Besides her husband and a son, Z. P. Burdick, the deceased is survived by an aged mother, Mrs. William Grubb, two sisters—Mrs. W. H. Noyes of this city and Mrs. J. E. Hayner of Madison, and two brothers—John and Stephen Grubb.

The funeral will be private and will be held from the home at two o'clock Friday afternoon. Friends are requested to send no flowers.

Fire Police Money: One half of the money collected by the city treasurer from the various insurance companies' representatives has been turned over to the fire police for their use.

GENTLE ANNIE, THE GINGHAMS ARE HERE IF SPRING IS NOT.

ALL ABOUT GINGHAMS—THE NEW GINGHAMS—NOTHING MORE.

Gingham Season 1910

The Big Store's showing of Gingham is so much better and so much larger than ever before that it seems almost impossible for a customer to stop at just purchasing one dress. She sees so many beautiful styles that she cannot resist buying. One lady came in intending to buy only one pattern; said she never saw a more beautiful line. Before she left she had selected five dresses. Another lady had the same experience. She went away with four dress patterns. One lady came in and after looking at our assortment thought that she could do better in Chicago. She came back to the Big Store, selected her dresses, and said there was nothing in the city to compare with our assortments. And so it goes.

WE CANNOT BEGIN TO DESCRIBE IN PRINT THE MANY BEAUTIFUL STYLES, IN ALL THE VARIOUS QUALITIES, THAT WE ARE SHOWING. YOU MUST COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF. BUT JUST TO GIVE YOU A SLIGHT IDEA OF WHAT IS TO BE FOUND HERE WE MENTION A FEW OF THE STYLES AND PRICES.

French Gingham

Stripes and large plaids in new combinations and designs with woven floral effects, in blues, pinks, greys, greens, browns and tans, 32-inch, 35c a yard.

Our line at 25c

is the assortment that the people are raving about. It comprises most everything that can be found in a complete line, even checks from the smallest to the large half-inch size, in navy, light blue, pink, brown, and black and white, and the different broken checks. Stripes in all colors and combinations, and the large plaids in so many different styles and colors that one is puzzled to tell what is the prettiest. Plain and solid colors, in 10 shades of blue alone, greens, tans, browns, reds, grey and pink, 32-in., 25c a yard.

Large plaids in many pleasing combinations, 27 in., 15c a yard.
Plain colors, small and larger checks and plaids, in the newest colorings, 32 in., 15c

At 12 1-2c

We pride ourselves with the number and the beauty of the styles we are showing. No more complete line shown anywhere in the Northwest. Patterns that vie with the fine French Gingham, in some cases they are the same. Nothing is left out, everything imaginable is to be found in this line. Plain and solid colors in all shades, 27 in., 12½c a yard we show an assortment that in quality and styles you are at a loss to know what to choose. Blues, tans, greens, brown, pinks and black and white, 27 in., 10c a yard.

At 10c

At 8c

We have a quality that sells for 10c or 12½c in most places. A large assortment of styles and color to select from. Plain colors also, 27 in., 8c a yard.

5000 YARDS of GINGHAMS ALONE.

GINGHAMS ENOUGH TO SINK A SHIP, (if it were not too large).

Misery in Head

"I had misery in my head, was irritable, wretched. A druggist recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine. From the first I improved, and I continued until I was entirely well again." MISS VIOLA HAKER, Orange, Texas.

If you are subject to headache, backache, neuralgia, epilepsy, weak stomach—the chances are your nervous system is run down. All the organs get their energy from the nerves, and when they are out of order, it is because you lack nerve force.

Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy and consequently strengthens the action of the organs.

The first bottle will benefit. If not, your druggist will return your money.

WE SELL THE DR. MILES' REMEDIES H. E. Ranous & Co., Druggists, 21 W. Milwaukee St., Janesville.

HOLME'S STORE

Two Days' Sale of LINEN Handkerchiefs.

In order to stimulate business during the dull season we have conducted during the past two weeks a series of special sales, offering for a limited period only, new staple goods at prices that practically compel people to buy. The embroidered Shirts and Front Sale, just over, has been the most successful of the series and has been widely talked about.

Our next special feature is the sale on Handkerchiefs. We offer eight special lots at the following reduced prices. After this week what are left of them go back to the regular prices again.

LOT 1: Ladies' Pure Irish Linen Handkerchiefs, hem-stitched, fine quality; each$1 1/2c

LOT 2: Ladies' Pure Irish Linen Handkerchiefs, hem-stitched, extra fine quality; special cut price;12 1/2c

LOT 3: Our regular 25c Ladies' Pure Linen Handkerchiefs; these are the equal of any 25c handkerchiefs sold elsewhere and are a wonderful bargain at each;15c

LOT 4: Ladies' 11. S. Handkerchiefs, very fine sheer quality with Madras embroidered corners, previously sold at 25c each; special each18c

LOT 5: Ladies' Pure Irish Linen hand embroidered Handkerchiefs. These were 25c, but owing to their being bought last Fall to retail for unaltered did not sell readily to our Xmas patrons. They are exquisitely made and if handled would be a bargain at 25c. Now each15c

LOT 6: Men's Japonet 11. S. Initial Handkerchiefs sold at 10c. What we have left now6c

LOT 7: Ladies' fine sheer Initial Handkerchiefs, not linen, sold previously at 10c, your choice of the stock on hand6c

LOT 8: Extra fine 11. S. hand embroidered pure Irish Linen Handkerchiefs, never sold less than 35c; dainty, fine patterns, at each;25c

The above handkerchiefs were received late last fall and were ordered nearly a year ago. Since then the new tariff and general rise in prices have gone into effect. We would have to pay at least 10 per cent higher to secure these goods today.

FAILURE OF ENGINE CAUSE FOR DELAYS

Classified Report Analyzing the Cause Of Such Troubles.

Says the classified report, analyzing the cause of road failures (stoppages of trains), and also shop failures, is now in use. Shop failures do not, however, affect the train schedule so disastrously as road failures. Regardless of the definition of what constitutes a road failure, the following record on a railroad owning about a thousand locomotives will be of interest:

The engine mileage per road failure is 15,000. This includes all classes of locomotives and extends over a period of several months. A daily report of every road failure is received by the superintendent of motive power. He and his assistant keep personally after the failures, day by day. Their endeavor is to make up the failures on the spot, with the master mechanic, roundhouse foreman, road foreman of engines and the engine men if possible. Thus less than a week elapses before one or the other mechanical head in traveling over the road will be able to follow up each individual failure. Every effort is made to improve the force with the fundamental idea that knowledge of the real cause of the failure is the object of this personal investigation. Discipline is made incidental to the prevention of further failures from the same cause.

According to the well established legends, railroad failures come in epidemics, each of its kind. At such times no step is left untaken to follow the trouble to its source. For example, the general term "air-brake failure" was classified into pipe, pump, etc.

On finding that outside a few burst pipes the pumps seemed to be causing trouble, a diagram of the working parts was issued. In the place for notation the following information was required: Date pump last overhauled? Part failed? Circumstances of failure? Probable cause of failure? Do facts old or new?

In connection with this report, which was promptly made out by the roundhouse clerk and sent direct to the mechanical superintendent, a systematic inspection of air pumps was instituted every six months. By following the same source with each class of failure the source was practically eliminated once for all.

For example, flues are always considered to be a source of trouble. At one important terminal on this particular road were forty boiler-makers, and getting in overtime at that. By making a clean sweep of the family which seemed to be making work for itself, the present force consists of six boiler-makers. The failures now number one where they formerly numbered five.

Hard work, consistent and persistent, is, of course, the secret of this good record. It was not all done in a month or a year, but it was done to stay done. The road foreman of engines have been brought up through this process to a state of better comprehension of the problems. Their attention has been directed chiefly to fuel economy all along. The entire mechanical department shows the spirit of getting at the root of things. The results are reflected in the improved showing above.

LOCAL TRAINMEN TO WATCH THE RESULTS

Much Interest Displayed in the Outcome of Switchmen's Strike.

Much interest is being manifested by railroad employees in this city with regard to the impending strike of the switchmen employed on the eighteen railroads entering Chicago. This interest is not simply that of curious spectators for should the switchmen's strike be called, and the demands of the trainmen's grievance committee be ignored, it is probable that their interest will become vital for indications are that the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen may also strike in sympathy.

Almost the same situation confronts the roads as did before the switchmen's strike was declared at St. Paul and Minneapolis, with this difference, that the switchmen's union seems to have the united support of the trainmen. Vice President A. F. Whitney, representing the demands of the yardmen to a meeting of the road's representatives on an hour and a half for overtime work is asked by the 3,100 switchmen represented. The increased cost of living is given as the reason for the demand.

At the same time, a conference has been held by Vice President Whitney and the chairman and secretaries of the trainmen's grievance committee of the eighteen roads. It is alleged that an agreement has been reached which is to the effect that if the switchmen strike, the trainmen will vote on the question of a sympathetic strike.

Although there are but a few in Janesville who are members of the switchmen's union, a great majority of the railroad employees belong to the trainmen's organization and will have a vote on the strike question. Should the switchmen strike, this city will be among the first to feel the effects, as it is on the main line to Chicago and a large amount of traffic moves between this city and Chicago.

The general managers refuse to consider the threats of a strike as serious. Through O. L. Dickinson, their spokesman, they said they believed that the whole matter would be settled by arbitration, as the switchmen could not strike in the face of public opinion.

Still another conference over the wage question was opened in Chicago yesterday. Machinists representing the employees of twenty-seven railroads in the Southwest are adding for an increase in wages varying from four to eight cents an hour, according to locality. The farther west, the higher the wages asked.

ACTUALLY PAINLESS

I extracted ten teeth for a patient last week to her complete satisfaction. As I took out the last one she exclaimed, "God bless you, Doctor."

The surprise and delight at finding the work really Painless instead of agonizing, caused her to feel deeply grateful both to me and to the science which has enabled me to actually do away with the Pain in extracting teeth.

"SOMEBODY LIED!" SO SAY ATTORNEYS IN BIENASH CASE

Jurors Must Think So, Too, for They Had Arrived at No Verdict After Four Hours' Confab.

Somebody lied—deliberately and willfully—in the Biensch case. On this point attorneys H. J. Maxfield and William Smith for the prosecution and Thomas S. Nolan for the defense agreed in the closing arguments this morning. In each instance, though, it was the other fellow's witness or witnesses.

The prosecution had striven to show that following a wordy altercation on Mineral Point avenue, the afternoon of January 21, Herman Biensch of the town of Center and his son, George Biensch, who were on their way back to the country after disposing of a tobacco crop, attacked Harry Gardner at the front gate of his father, R. A. Gardner's, home at 1315 Mineral Point avenue and not only beat and kicked him into a state bordering on insensibility but smashed the gate in the process; that the trouble arose from Herman Biensch's permitting his delivery to bump into the grocery delivery which Gardner was driving; and it was alleged the assailants indulged in profanity and were under the influence of liquor at the time.

The defense maintained that the boy blocked the highway and resorted to abusive language when requested to move out of the way; that he attacked the older Biensch with a whip; that Arthur Biensch and not George, who, it is claimed, was not on the scene at all, came to the assistance of the older man and cuffed the boy once or twice and pushed him against the gate; that there was no kicking or other rough usage; that the boy was not in any way seriously hurt; and that nobody was intoxicated.

Attorney Maxfield in his argument for the State reviewed the testimony of Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Graves, Miss Mabel Decker, and Miss Grace Turnbull, all eye witnesses of the episode, and of Dr. George Field, who was called to attend the complainant, and declared that it all tended to establish the State's contention. He said that Harry Gardner was a good boy who never used profane language and paid his respects to Arthur Biensch, declaring that in his opinion it wouldn't be at all surprising if a young fellow who would refer to his father as "the old man" on the witness stand should willfully and deliberately state that he was at a certain place when he wasn't. Maxfield then testified that he was at the scene and that he saw the older Biensch who kicked down and that Herman struck and kicked him after he was down. There was other disinterested evidence to the same effect. The boy which the defense had exhibited in evidence was an excuse for pounding a boy into a state of insensibility wouldn't hurt a man through an ordinary suit of clothes, let alone a heavy fur overcoat.

Attorney T. S. Nolan, for the defense, declared that the boy's agent mother had testified on the stand that he was on his feet when the Biensch party drove away and his father was looking after the horse. He believed that it was an outrage to fast such a case on the taxpayers and compel the State to bear the expense of the run and frolic instead of "this fresh young man." The boy when requested to get out of the road had answered impudently and subsequently struck twice at Herman Biensch with a whip. Admitted that it didn't hurt him any, it exasperated him to be attacked by this snip of a boy. The ladies attending a church party of course sympathized with Harry and with all due sincerity saw things the way they wanted to see them. As for Mr. Biensch, he was not known as a quarrelsome man and the son, George, who had been made defendant in the case, had started home by way of Washington street and was not on the scene at all. August Brandenburg who was with him had testified to this.

Attorney William Smith, closing for the prosecution, said that he would hesitate to talk at all were it not for the fact that a great wrong had been committed. Any assault on the peace of the community was an assault on the community itself. For one reason, it was a violation of the law and whatever we may say about the application of the law, we are all dependent upon the law for our own protection. Therefore it did not live with the defense to say that the case ought not to have been prosecuted. The facts had been as the defense had tried to maintain they were, it would have been the first duty of Mr. Biensch to file a complaint against Gardner. While the counsel agreed that somebody was lying, the difference between the attitude of the counsel for the prosecution and defense lay in this: that the former claimed that the interested parties were doing the lying to save themselves from punishment. The attorney closely analyzed all the testimony and called upon the jury for a conviction.

Judge Field charged the jury consisting of Edward Amersbach, C. L. Carls, J. M. Thayer, Edward Smith, F. H. Snyder, and Hyatt Smith shortly after eleven o'clock.

At 3:15 this afternoon the jury came in to ask for further instructions from the court.

"Glass-Eyed Winks Barred."
"Yes, I saw that chap turn around and wink at me," said the pretty girl. "I'm used to that. I don't mind it so awfully much if it's a good eye, but the other day a fellow with a glass eye winked at me, I draw the line at a glass eye. Wouldn't you?"

INTERMEDIATE FIVE TO PLAY SATURDAY

Locals Have Game Scheduled With Basketball Five of Rockford-Boy's Club.

Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building the representative basketball team of the Intermediate five will play against the Rockford Boy's club five. Before Christmas an Intermediate team played the Rockford quintet in Rockford and gave them a severe drubbing. The team that will play for the Intermediate is a speedy bunch and expect to play as well as their predecessors, although the score will probably not be as large. The Rockford squad having improved considerably since the other contest. The teams will line up as follows:

Janesville: Brown, center; Robert Cunningham and Koen, forwards; Blank and Stewart, guards; W. McDonald and Mott, substitutes.

Rockford: Carter, center; Williams (captain), and Talmie, guards; Nilsson and Christensen, guards; Joe Nilsson sub forward; Lloyd, substitute guard.

DISCUSS PLAN FOR THE APPROPRIATION

Passage of a River and Harbor Bill is Urged by Members of Congressional Committee.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 10.—"It would be the worst kind of economy not to pass a River and Harbor bill at this session of congress and to furnish the necessary funds to carry on the improvements already begun on the rivers and harbors of the country," said Representative William E. Rodgers of the 22nd Illinois district and a member of the Rivers and Harbors committee.

"There are abundant examples of the unbusiness-like method of the government in its treatment of the waterways of the country and I believe the time has come when we should go about improving our great natural highways with the same discriminating care as we put into our private business."
"The most conspicuous example that I now recall of false economy in the part of the government is the matter in which the development of the Mississippi river has been carried on. We have spent several millions on that river but without any well defined policy and as a result we have little or nothing to show for the money spent on that great tributary of the Mississippi."
"Now that the committee on rivers and harbors has practically decided on a bill that, while it will be comprehensive in character will not carry anywhere near the amount some of the more enthusiastic friends of waterways have anticipated, the work on the Mississippi will have to be practically done all over again."

"The rumors current that the senate will not pass a River and Harbor bill at the present session I do not believe are founded upon facts. My information is just the reverse. I believe that when the bill goes to the senate public sentiment will be so strong in favor of a waterways measure that the upper branch cannot ignore the demand."
"You can have no idea how the sentiment calling for the improvement of our rivers and harbors has grown in the last few years unless you come from a district such as mine is, bordering upon one of the great natural thoroughfares of the country."

"The National Rivers and Harbors congress and the great commercial bodies of the cities interested in the question of cheaper transportation are largely responsible for this awakening."
"Sentiment has been crystallized in favor of a comprehensive plan of waterway improvement and the congress of the United States must be responsive to that sentiment."
"Any senator, in my judgment, who would attempt to talk such a bill to death would be inviting his own political ruin. Times have changed since the days when a waterway bill was defeated by talk and the country has become educated to the needs of improved river and harbor facilities. Not so much for the effect it may have in the regulation and reduction in railroad rates, but because the rivers are needed to haul our bulky freights."
"The bill will probably be ready for report this week, the committee having practically concluded consideration of the measure and believe it will be a bill that will receive the endorsement of the country."

Difference of Opinion.
Myra Kelley tells a characteristic story of Mr. and Mrs. Spitzky of the East side, who rushed to school and frantically rescued their son, a lad of seven, upon whom an operation for adenoids was about to be performed. "It was good we got there in time," said the father; but the already Americanized son remarked: "What did youse butt in for?"

Early Irish Standard.
The green flag and harp did not come into existence until the reign of Henry VIII. An early standard of Ireland had three gold crowns on a blue field, and for 400 years or more this was the national flag. Through many generations the Irish were no less loyal to the blue and golden-crowned standard than they are to-day to the green and harp.

Attained Fame Early.
At 22 Paul Potter painted "The Young Bull," now in the museum at The Hague, said to be one of the finest animal pictures on canvas; Campbell wrote his "Pleasures of Hope," on which his fame as a poet rests; Farquhar had made for himself a lasting name as a dramatist, and Conde was the most famous military general of his time.

MEN ARE AS HELPLESS AS CHILDREN

When Taken Suddenly Ill—Here is a Common-Sense Safeguard.

His, strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill. The strongest, stoutest, and usually most self-controlled, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his everyday actions.

For example, he comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner, and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst.

His trouble was acute indigestion brought on by overloading his liver.

A couple of Rossall Dyspepsia Tablets would have given him instant relief—would have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Rossall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket, or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and indigestion will not bother you.

Rossall Dyspepsia Tablets remedy stomach troubles by supplying the element, the absence of which in the gastric juices causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They aid the stomach to digest food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood and material necessary for overcoming natural body waste.

We know what Rossall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail we will refund your money. Three sizes: 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rossall Tablets in Janesville only at our store—The Rossall Store, The Smith Drug Co.

The Man Behind the Gun.

The late Admiral Krben had the good fortune or the merit to originate the world-famous phrase, "The man behind the gun." He used it in a speech on the factors of success in naval warfare to emphasize the necessity of having efficiency, preparedness run through the entire personnel. It was also a reminder that the enlisted men have a good deal more to do with bringing about a victory than always appears in history or official reports. The expression was employed in supplementing the views of Capt. Mahan, and attracted attention at once in epitomizing a whole library of instruction.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THERE is a certain kind of person, the harm done by whom is in exact proportion to his good intentions.

And that is the person who never can see a need or desire without promising to fulfill it, and who, having promised, in all cases, comes out of ten never seems to think of the promise again.

You chance to visit one of them in the spring and admire her huge apple orchard.

"Yes," she says, "we really have more apples than we know what to do with. Now, if you are so fond of them we must send you a box next summer. Which do you prefer, the early ones or the winter apples? The early ones? Well, you can expect a box the last of August, then."

And if this is your first experience with her you do expect them, that that's all, of course.

You see a male member of the species taking some pictures, and you ask him to let you take the film when he is through with it so that you may have some pictures.

"No, indeed," he says, "I will finish you up a set myself. No bother, I can just as well as not, I enjoy doing it."

You express your undying gratitude, naturally, and then proceed to live in hopes and, eventually, of course, die in despair.

A feminine specimen of the class goes to see her washer woman and discovering that the baby really has nothing fit to wear, asks the mother how old he is, and she tells her that she has a new one, and she really means to at the time but—well, you know how it is. Only, unless you've been a washerwoman with more babies than you just had the money to clothe, and had a promise and then a disappointment, you don't know how that end of it is.

Into one of the hospitals at the time of the Civil War an old darkey woman used to come bringing for each sick soldier a little pickled cucumber.

It sounds like a strange gift, doesn't it, but the surgeons say that there was nothing so much craved by the wounded, especially those who had lost much blood, as these sharp pickled cucumbers.

The book which told of old Mamma's visits went on to give this little anecdote showing that the class of ready promisers and equally ready disappointers is not a twentieth century growth.

"I have no idea why more of these pickles were not provided, when such complete provision was made for all hospital supplies," says the story teller. "My informant said that one of the highest ladies of the land had visited that ward and asked what the boys most wanted. The answer was, pickled cucumbers. She immediately told them that she would supply that want, and would order a whole barrel of the coveted delicacies from a wholesale grocery house. The pickles never came and the boys were greatly disappointed. The lady probably forgot her promise, or found it inconvenient to keep it. 'Old Mamma' isn't much on promises," said one of the wounded soldiers, but she always fetches the pickles."

The reason people promise future favors so readily is, of course, that while the gratitude they will arouse looms up big in the present, the effort it will cost them is dwarfed in the distance of the future.

The impulse to do a kind thing sometime in the future is usually ten times as strong as the impulse to do a kind thing right now.

But while the latter is an impulse to follow recklessly the former is an impulse to think over before you voice it.

They say that if you are saved with good intentions, I fancy some of the carriages may be made of over ready promises.

You may not be able to do all the kind things of people that you would like to do, but you surely can avoid disappointing people by never promising what you are not absolutely sure you can and will fulfill.

Fads and Fashions

New York.—Although winter weather is still prevalent and may be expected to continue for some time, the warm anticipations of the coming of the spring season and display a large array not only of spring but even of summer goods.

Winter materials and costumes are still shown, but everything, particularly the low prices, indicates that the tail end of the winter season has arrived. Women of moderate means, who like to dress well, will find it to their advantage to make the rounds of the fashionable shops with a view of picking up bargains. There are many of them to be found, particularly in the better grade of evening frocks and coats.

Now is also a good time to invest in furs, though the wise woman will guard against the extremes which have run rampant this season and will choose models slightly conservative, whether she is buying a coat or a small fur.

The long fur coat which has been this winter's fad may not be so chic next season, but it is fairly sure to be acceptable for certain kinds of wear. There are also tempting bargains in fur millinery. Of course, there is no certainty as to whether the styles which will be next winter, but if a fur hat or hat case is bought cheaply, it will be a good investment under all circumstances, as it will be comparatively easy to remodel them.

Although spring may not be expected for at least two months every woman will find it a wise precaution to order her tailored frock suit for spring wear now, if she has not done so already.

In selecting the material for her suit it will be best for the buyer to select some lightweight material, the line will serve. These materials are always worn in midsummer, even in a roundabout way, and in hot weather are less oppressive and trying than the wooler weaves, no matter how loosely the latter may be woven.

The early showing of suitings indicates a strong feeling for lightweight and light colored weaves of the rough, loosely woven stuffs so popular last season and all the prettiest things so far are in these materials. Smoother, lighter weaves may come along later, but it seems safe to assume that the rougher stuffs will be good style throughout the season. Certainly they are attractive enough to justify continued success. Many light colored, comparatively light colorings are shown, supplying a welcome change after the unusually sombre line of the winter season.

The light colored tweeds, in various shades and kindred weaves, are lovely.

Moreover, they are usually of mixed effects which do not lend readily and so are serviceable in spite of their light coloring. However, to many women the light colored suits are not so becoming as a dark suit, no matter how severely it is made. Blue, as usual, will be worn a great deal and is always a safe investment since, provided it is really dark, and not of a very vivid or purplish tone, it is almost universally becoming and is the coolest looking of all dark colors.

Some charming lighter blues of soft, dull silvery shades mixed with white are among the home-spun and tweed suits and these same tones appear too in loosely woven rough diagonals and in the smart stuff of the same soft, loose, rough surface order, but with a weave in, twisting the old-time basket weave.

Corresponding shades and weaves of rose, mauve, lilac, gold and lime green are on the counters and have a fresh, springlike look. They are charming when made up with the utmost severity and are almost invariably becoming.

The coats for these trotting suits are somewhat shortened, though not to an extreme degree. The low cut collar is retained and the coats are but little cut away. If at all, in the shoulder of the buttoning there is variety even among the severest tailor modes. The number of the buttons depending chiefly upon the depth to which the skirt or skirted collar runs down.

The skirts are fitted smoothly over the hips and often simply aored, but some of the blurring effect is introduced toward the bottom or down the full length of the front and back. The fully attached front panel or box plait running down to meet a group of platts below the knees and associated with plain sides and a full length box plait back or inverted plait back is very often seen on good models. There are yoke skirts too, but less is seen of them in the severe tailor modes since the coats are shorter.

Many models are made up on lines and lines and some of them are exceedingly good looking and modish, but fashion experts are of the opinion that the Russian cruz will not survive the summer and a walking suit of that style would be hopelessly out of vogue in the fall.

Quite wonderful is the display of materials for spring frocks. Particularly fine and attractive is the array of foulards, which promise to be extremely fashionable during the coming spring and summer seasons. The gold tones and brownish yellows which were novelties last spring and enjoyed decided popularity during the winter are shown in great variety. These same yellows are found not only in chiffons, but also in muselines and other sheer materials. In the Oriental silks, in the linens, and even in the dimities, ginghams and percales. There are also the rose tones, various blues, which have appeared in winter materials, some very attractive greens and lavender and occasional grays and browns. Of course, there are also innumerable good designs in black and white. Some smart corse foulards with white or black designs are also offered, but these will probably appear at their best when veiled in dark tulle or chiffon after the fashion which promises to be very popular.

A comparatively new material is reversible shot satin. It is procurable in many charming color combinations, such as gray with daffodil yellow, deep violet with delicate mauve and dark emerald green with pale leaf color. By a clever adjustment on the part of the modiste one side of the satin is folded over as trimming. On a green model the darker side is employed for the underskirt and for the lower part of a draped bodice. The tulle, extending quite far down, is of the lighter shade, but abashed to disclose the dark skirt. A huge oblong patch of velvet in both tones of green holds the open tulle together at its lower end. The skirt is of pale green while above the dark bodice drapery there is an emerald jeweled garland. The construction of these reversible satins requires much the same skill as that demanded by the "hardcore" gown.

A narrow band of gold or silver braid and two folds of tulle or maline form one of the many novelties in trimming. The touch of gold or silver comes next to the collar of the frock and the folds of tulle lie next to the skin.

Long thin coats, which really are separate garments, yet have the appearance of being a part of the gown itself, are much worn in the evening when a hat is considered the correct finish to the toilette.

Bodices are again featured on many of the newest costume designs, but they are different enough in style to make them seem something of a novelty.

Long, light, severely plain sleeves are rapidly giving way to the more elaborate models.

THE PROBLEM AT OUR GATES

By MARRY RUSSELL.

The moral impulse which is urging the reformers to put forth greater effort has no greater or exemplification than the general movement to better the condition of the lower down. The little sisters and brothers' help in the fight of poverty, with cover, the necessity of the daily wage before them, holding them down to the great melting pot of America, he is take the time from the daily round to fight for themselves. Some do not even know how to help themselves. Another is full of bitterness for the man who has made money enough to hire him, almost body and soul and dictate to him what he shall earn each day and almost what he shall earn for food and raiment, and the shelter that he calls home.

When the foreigner comes to this great melting pot of America, he is bewildered by the multitudes of voices offered to him. With eyes accustomed to poverty or frictions, or number he feels the smooth silver number he feels the feeling of opulence. Soon he and his kind find that, even as wages are more, the demands of the world around him is greater. He becomes rapidly more bitter against the land which he accuses of poverty. The man who has made money enough to hire him, almost body and soul and dictate to him what he shall earn each day and almost what he shall earn for food and raiment, and the shelter that he calls home.

STATE FIGHTS UNITED STATES FOR SPRING LAKE

Question of Jurisdiction Comes Up at Hearing to Determine Right to Close District.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 10.—At a hearing called by Maj. C. S. Riche, U. S. A., to take up the application of the Spring Lake drainage commissioners for permission to permanently close the Spring Lake drainage region to navigation, a conflict over the question of jurisdiction developed between the United States war department and the state of Illinois.

Attorney General Dempsey and Smith of Springfield appeared for the state of Illinois with protests against the United States government issuing the desired permit. They took the grounds that all previous litigation between the drainage commissioners and the state of Illinois had taken no cognizance of the authority the government might have over the region in question.

Judge Kern of Tazewell made the plea in behalf of the drainage commissioners. He outlined the history of the long controversy, taking the position that before the Chicago drainage canal was opened and before the state locks and dams were built in the Illinois river the land in question was suited for cultivation and that the channels leading through it had never been considered navigable, and that such portion of it as might be considered state land was at that time under the jurisdiction of the state of Illinois.

Without committing the government in any way, on the question, Maj. Riche, acting as judge advocate, suggested that the warring factions presume that the war department could exercise jurisdiction over the district and that each side file arguments as to the fitness of the district for cultivation or for navigation. Each side agreed to this and the hearing was continued 20 days to allow evidence to be prepared.

The Important Problem

confronting anyone in need of a laxative is not a question of a single action only, but of permanently beneficial effects, which will follow proper efforts to live in a healthful way, with the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. Whenever it is required, as it cleanses the system gently yet promptly, without irritation and will therefore always have the preference of all who wish the best of family laxatives.

The combination has the approval of physicians, because it is known to be truly beneficial, and because it has given satisfaction to the millions of well-informed families who have used it for many years past.

To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

assessment under the corporation income tax, on account of failing below the $5,000 exemption mark, or because they did no business at all, that they are not required to execute or file the return, showing what business they did do."

"This is clearly erroneous," continued Mr. Bentley. "The law makes no exception," but provides, specifically that every corporation, regardless of whether it shows any liability or any business at all, must make the return. The failure to do this subjects the offending corporation to a fine of not less than $1,000 or more than $5,000, and in case any corporation makes a false return with intent to defraud the assessment of the tax,

it is liable to both fine and imprisonment. It is particularly essential that all corporations understand that the return provided for under this law must be made and on file in this office before March 1. All corporations which have registered their articles with the secretary of state have been sent the blanks on which to make this return. If there are any that have failed to receive blanks they may obtain them by applying to this office.

The fact, however, that they have for any reason failed to receive the blanks, and for that reason are not able to make and file their returns before March 1, will not operate to relieve them of the duty of obtaining the necessary blanks in time to make the return."

Only about five hundred corporations doing business within the territory under Collector Bentley's juisdiction have as yet filed their report.

This is little more than ten per cent of the total number to make return.

It is probable that many of the corporations are withholding their reports in the belief that when the case involving the constitutionality of the law is reached by the supreme court, the law will be knocked out. It is not probable, however, that such a result will occur. It does not all before the date set for the filing of the returns.

RELIGIOUS WORK IN

STATE UNIVERSITY

Third Annual Conference on Christian Influence Surrounding Students to Be Held at University.

The third annual meeting of the Conference of Church Workers in State Universities will be held at the University of Wisconsin Feb. 15-17.

Reports of religious work in state colleges will be made by representatives of 21 institutions, among them the universities of Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois, Chicago, Iowa, North Dakota and Wisconsin.

The opening session, Feb. 15, will be marked by the address of welcome by President C. R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, and that by

C. J. Galpin, president of the University of Wisconsin Student Pastors association. In the afternoon, in the evening the Rev. W. W. Webb, Episcopal bishop of Milwaukee, will preside, and addresses will be delivered by General Secretary H. P. Cope of the Religious Education association on

"Newer Ideals of Religious Education in Universities"; by the Rev. E. H.

Pence of Detroit, Mich., on "The Need of the University Pastorate"; and by

Prof. Shuller Matthews of the Chicago

Divinity school on "The National Significance of the Religious Life of State

Universities."

The religious needs of state universities will be considered in a paper to be presented by John H. Root, general secretary of the World's Christian Student Federation, at the meeting of the Wednesday morning session. The paper will be followed by a discussion of the most effective means of meeting these needs of the universities. In which Prof. E. A. Gilmore of the law school of the University of Wisconsin will lead the consideration of the resolution of the religious forces in such institutions to student grafting, law, and order on the campus, and student self-government and the honor system.

The important question of cooperation between theological schools and the state universities, so that pre-theological work with credit may be taken by students in the universities, will be discussed under the leadership of

Prof. S. O. Bronson of the Garrett

Bible Institute, and of G. P. Coler

What an Edison Phonograph will do for you Think what it means to have an instrument that will play equally well one of Harry Lauder's rollicking songs or a beautiful aria by Slezak, Martin or Constantino; that will play band music which will make you march, and that will play waltzes and two-steps in a way that will make you dance.

Think of an instrument which such a man as Victor Herbert selects from all others as the one to have his exclusive service and for which his own orchestra plays. That is the Edison Phonograph. Then consider how small an amount of money will buy one—$12.50 to $200.00—and you will see why no one need be without an Edison Phonograph, just as no one would be who has ever really heard it.

The LITTLE BROWN JUG at KILDARE

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

The black woman rose and ministered to her mistress, muttering in kind monotone consolatory phrases from which "chile" and "honey" occasionally reached Griswold's ears. The old mammy produced from a bag several toilet bottles, a fresh handkerchief, a hand mirror and a brush, which she arranged in the empty seat. "Thank you, Aunt Phoebe, I'm feeling much better. Just let me alone now, please."

The girl put aside the white rose for a moment and breathed deeply of the vinegrette, whose keen, pungent odor stole across the aisle to Griswold. She bent forward, took up the hand mirror, and brushed the hair away from her forehead with half a dozen light strokes. She touched her handkerchief to the eye, and then took up the rose again and settled back with a little sigh of relief. In her new upright position her gaze rested upon Griswold's newspapers, which he had flung down on the empty half of his section. One of them had fallen open and lay with its outer page staring with the bold grin of display type.

TWO GOVERNORS AT WAR!

What Did the Governor of North Carolina Say to the Governor of South Carolina?

The color deepened in the girl's face; a slight frown gathered in her smooth forehead; then she called the colored woman and a brief colloquy followed between them. In a moment Griswold was addressed in a tone and manner at once condescending and deferential.

"If you please, sah, would you 'all 'low my mist'ah 't look at yo' newspapers?"

"Certainly. Take them along."

Griswold noted with surprise the girl's immediate absorption in the telegrams from New Orleans relating to the difficulty between the two governors.

As she read she lost, he thought, something of her splendid color, and at one point in her reading her face went white for a moment, and Griswold saw the paper wrinkle under the tightening grasp of her hands. The tidings from New Orleans had undoubtedly aroused her indignation. She seemed to lose account of her surroundings, and several times Griswold was quite sure that he heard her half exclaim: "Preposterous! Intolerable!"

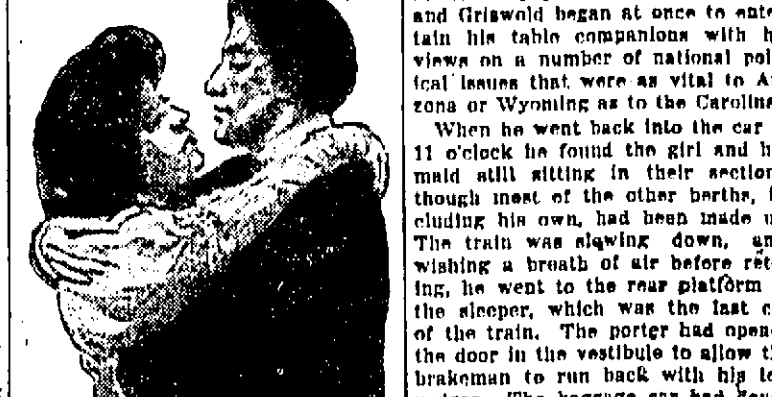

When she had finished the New Orleans telegrams she cast the offending newspapers from her, then, recalling herself, summoned the black woman, and returned them to Griswold, the dusky agent expressing the elaborate thanks of her race for his courtesy. The girl had utterly ignored Griswold, and she now pulled down the curtain at her elbow with a snap and turned her face away from him.

Griswold's eyes wandered repeatedly from his manuscript to the car ceiling, then furtively to the uncompromisingly averted shoulder and head of the young lady, then back to his lecture notes, until he was weary of the process.

The alligator-hide suitcase thrust under the seat bore the familiar label of a Swiss hotel where Griswold had once spent a week, and spoke of the girl's acquaintance with an ampler world. When Phoebe had brought it forth the initials "H. O." in small black letters suggested Baltimore and Ohio to Griswold's lazy speculations, whereupon he reflected that while Baltimore was plausible the black was further reassured by the lanterns of the trainman beside the baggage car. Suddenly, as he reached the car and turned to retrace his steps, a man sprang up, seemingly from nowhere, and accosted him.

"I reckon y'u're the gov'nor, ain't y'u?"

"Yes, certainly, my man. What can I do for you?" replied Griswold, instantly.

"I reckoned it was y'u when y'u first come out on the platform. I'm app'nted to tell y'u, gov'nor, that if y'u have Bill Applewhite arrested in South Carolina, y'u'll get something one of these days y'u won't like. And if y'u try to find me y'u'll get it quicker. Good night, gov'nor."

"Good night!" exclaimed Griswold. The least irony had crept into the word governor as the man uttered it and slipped away into the darkness. The shadows swallowed him up; the frogs in the ditch, beside the track chanted dolorously; then the locomotive whistled for the brakeman, whose lantern was already bubbling toward the train.

As Griswold swung himself into the vestibule the girl who had borrowed his newspapers turned away hurriedly and walked swiftly before him to her section. The porter, who was gathering her things together, said, as she paused in the aisle by her seat: "Beginnin' to get ready, Miss Osborne. We're gwine into Columbia 30 minutes late all account dat hot box."

Griswold passed on to the smoking compartment and lit a cigar. His acquaintances of the supper table had retired, and he was glad to be alone with his thoughts before the train reached Columbia. His dealt harshly with himself for his stupidity in not having associated the girl's perturbation over the breach between the governor of North Carolina and the governor of South Carolina with the initials on her traveling bag; he had been very dull, but it was clear to him now that she was either the daughter or some other near relative of Gov. Osborne. In a few minutes she would leave the train at Columbia, where the governor lived, and he, a gentleman, he would continue on his way to Richmond, and thence to the university, and the incident would be closed. But Griswold was a lawyer, and he had an old-fashioned southern lawyer's respect for the majesty of law. On the spur of curiosity or impulse he had received a threatening message intended for the governor of South Carolina, who, from the manner of the delivery of the message, had been expected on this train. Griswold argued that the man who had spoken to him had been waiting at the little station near which they had stopped, in the hope of seeing the governor; that the waiting messenger had taken advantage of the unexpected halt of the train, and, further, that some suggestion of the governor in his own appearance had deceived the stranger. He felt the least bit guilty at having deceived the man, but it was now clearly his duty to see that the governor was advised of the threat that had been communicated in so unusual a manner.

I Send It On Trial.
If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Which others fail is where I have my greatest success. Read attached coupon today and I will send you free my illustrated book, "Rupture and its cure," showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. I will mail it to you, no charge, no risk.

A Bulletin of Opportunities

DO YOU WISH-TO TRADE SOMETHING?

HAVE YOU SOMETHING YOU WOULD LIKE TO SELL?

IS THERE A VACANT ROOM AT YOUR DISPOSAL?

WOULD YOU EXCHANGE YOUR SERVICES FOR MERCHANDISE OR SKILLED LABOR?

THEN

There is a way—a quick and easy one to obtain your desire—through the medium of a Little Gazette Want Ad. Our Want Ads are a daily bulletin of opportunities. Read them and keep posted.
